Second Term Exam

Charities are independent organization that help the poor ,the homeless, children ,old people and animals . They are involved with human rights ,education ,medical research and conservation of environment .

In 1997, there were about 180,000 charities in Britain with a total income of € 18 billion .Many charities that are now well known throughout the world such as: "Oxfam" and "Amnesty International", began in Britain .American are also enthusiastic supporters of charities .In 1995, they gave over 116 billion $.

"Oxfam" has aid programs to help poor people overseas, especially the victims of natural disasters. Other well known charities working in Britain include "Barnado's" which helps children, and "Age Concern" and "Help the Aged "which support old people, "Chelter" provides food and a place to stay for the jobless and the homeless.

In recent years, the "Telethon" has proved an effective method of fund-raising. During an evening of popular television programs; television stars ask the public to telephone and promise money the charities involved. Other fund-raising activities include fetes and jumbles sales
